Abide with the Wind

Cold as the Collapse

Long ago—

Dragons were worshipped as gods.

Dragonis

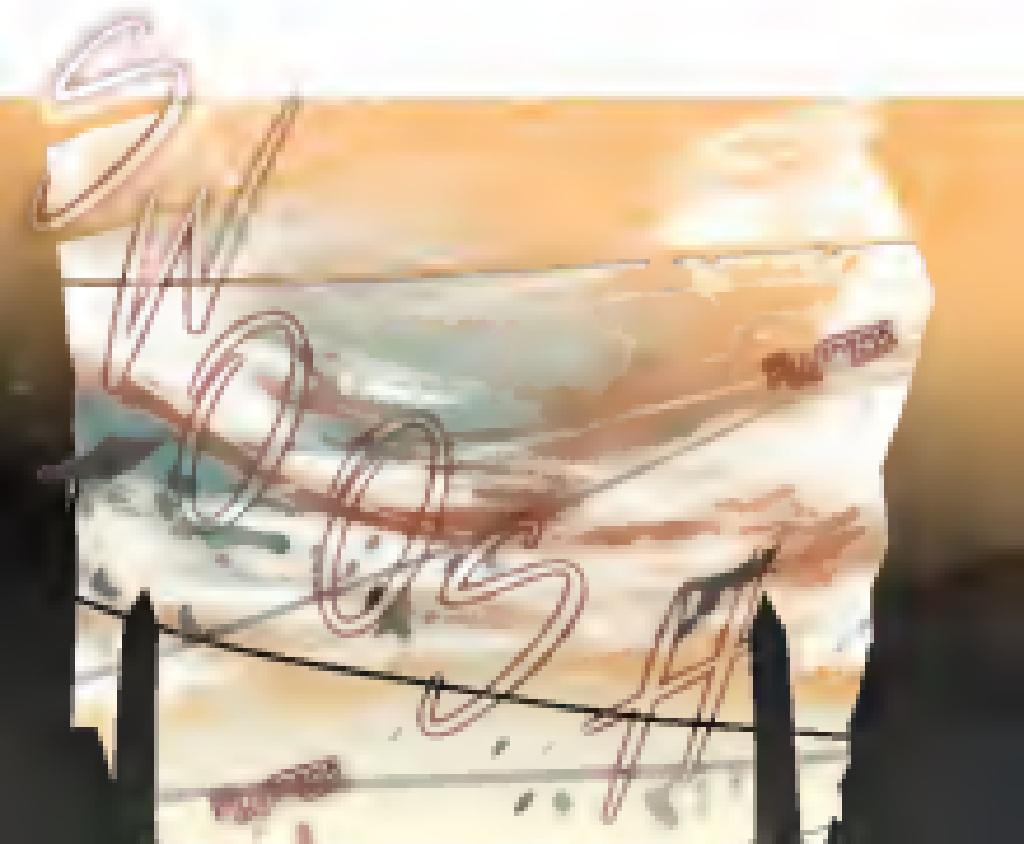

large timber beams that linked the earth and sky.

A dark, atmospheric scene of a forest at night. In the foreground, a small campfire or light source casts a warm glow, illuminating a portion of the ground and some nearby trees. The background is mostly in shadow, with faint outlines of trees and foliage visible against the dark sky.

With a turn of their head,
they could darken one's vision.

With a shake of these hoofs, thunder roared.

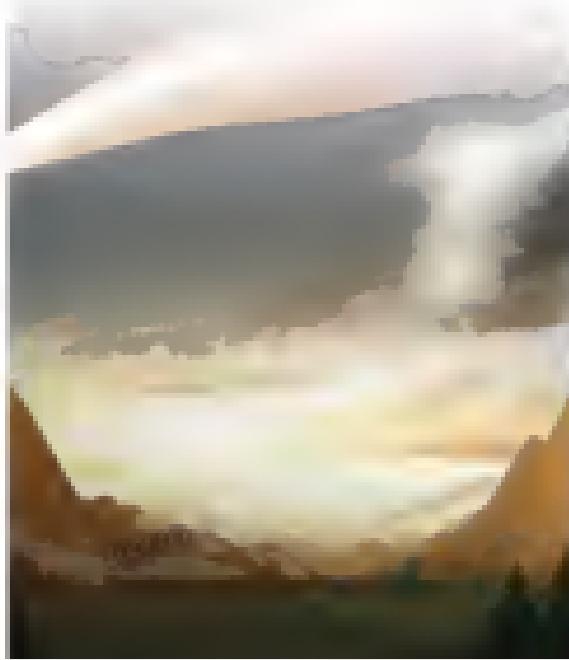

*And with a sweep of their wings,
they governed*

all life and death.

Now, without the source of their power to draw from,

the king and his close advisors will weaken
until they perish

Until then, I have to ensure that those two don't get stolen away from me

Once the king is dead...

Ugh, this migraine isn't going away.

The King is dead.

As far as possible.

That's the biggest problem.

70th Kingdom Year /
Empire Year 1070, June 10th

An attempt to free slaves in Tathwarg, Viceroy, was perpetrated by a terrorist group known as "Black Chain." While civilian casualties were avoided due to the intervention of Prince Richard, this event marked the start of the Southern Slave Rebellion.

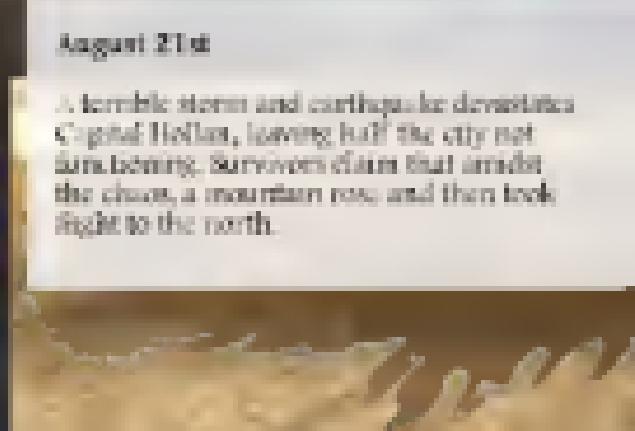

July 24th

The sixth and last wedding of King Patel the First, who is gifted by the gods with eternal youth, and his new wife, a lady from a disgraced noble family from the south.

August 18th

In order to subdue the growing threat of the Southern Slave Rebellion, the Empire begins to dispatch troops.

August 21st

A terrible storm and earthquake destroys Capital Hollow, leaving half the city not functioning. Survivors claim that amidst the chaos, a mountain rose and then took flight to the north.

This is quite a magnificent view.

In the past, the Imag worshipped that as a god and so were chosen

Because of that, your kind developed a superiority complex

When you discovered that other races could wield this power as well.

you tried to recruit them.

BLAZE

The Akkons fell behind long ago

but I wonder how humans will fare

Dragons and Rhynocs - what'll happen to the beings that cling onto this planet for life?

Are you
curious to find out,
Ms. Katin?

August 22nd

Martial law is declared in the capital.

Troops dispatched in order to subdue the Southern Slave Rebellion return to form the martial law army.

The king recommended a punitive force pursue the movement, but chaos in the capital results in a rejection of the plan.

Civil unrest grows as the king and council fail to compromise.

70th Kingdom Year

An influx of refugees from the old continent and those affected by the Southern Slave Rebellion results in a food shortage.

The capital falls into anarchy.

We were ushered into the cold season, as if the world was expecting that "disaster".
